STATEMENT FROM SECRETARY KIM BELSHÉ
Sacramento County Superior Court Ruling on Emergency Regulations for Nurse Staffing
(California Nurses Association vs. Schwarzenegger, et al.)

"Unsurprisingly, today's ruling is a mere extension of the court's March 4 preliminary ruling, which the Administration strongly rejects.

"We're confident in our actions and will appeal today's decision.

"The state's action on nurse-to-patient staffing ratios is legally solid, keeps patients safe and ensures access to care.

"The ruling claims the state's actions were arbitrary. Actually, the court's decision to ignore the state's longstanding rulemaking authority is arbitrary.

"Patient safety is a top priority of the Schwarzenegger Administration. A fundamental part of protecting patient safety is ensuring access to health care and maintaining adequate hospital nurse staffing.

"The Schwarzenegger Administration broke new ground by implementing first-in-the-nation minimum staffing levels for nurses. If we push too hard and overstress our frail healthcare system, California will be the first state to implement failed nurse staffing levels."

BACKGROUND

- Legislation enacted in 1999 required the Department of Health Services (DHS) to set "specific numeric ratios" for nurse-to-patient minimum staffing levels for specified units of acute care hospitals. Not only did the legislation authorize DHS to set the specific numeric ratios, earlier versions of the bill called for 1:6 ratios.
- In August 2003, DHS adopted regulations setting an initial minimum staffing level, rapidly lowering the nurse-to-patient staffing levels in 2005 and again in 2008. These enriched staffing levels would have required an additional 4,310 nurses.
- Committed to protecting patient safety, the Schwarzenegger Administration implemented regulations setting initial ratios at 1:6 for medical/surgical and mixed units on January 1, 2004.
- The fragility of California's health care system demanded a cautious approach in the implementation of the ratios. Therefore, DHS issued emergency regulations to maintain the minimum staffing level at 1:6 to ensure patient safety and access to care, rather than move the ratio to lower levels.
